Your naturalist guides will lead you through the live snake, frog, and butterfly exhibits in an unparalleled interactive set-up operated by the University of Costa Rica. You will then enter the open-air aerial tram system that will take you on an enchanting ride above the treetops in the rainforest. As you pass by giant, 300-year-old trees on the way down to the riverbanks, you will be surrounded by uninterrupted views of a virgin rainforest within the largest natural park in Central America: "La Amistad International Park", a transboundary protected area shared by Costa Rica and Panama.

Upon reaching the river, you will be able to disembark and enjoy a leisurely stroll through the Trail of the Giants alongside the Victoria River. This trail was named after the gigantic trees that live in it and have watched over the river for centuries. An optional and strenuous walk will take you to see the Puma waterfall. At the biological research station, you will be able to experience the operations of the dated researchers and if you are lucky enough, witness the discovery of a new plant or animal species.

After this gratifying adventure, there will be a buffet of fresh tropical fruits and soft drinks available for your enjoyment. There is also a souvenir shop for those looking for something to take home!
