Tour Description	This tour is a unique voyage of discovery into the twenty-first century that has to be experienced to be believed. Based on German technology, the Maglev train is an engineering breakthrough. This unique travel experience has just been revealed to the public, and you can be among the first to ride this super-high-speed transport system without wheels or rail friction. Your journey begins with a drive to the Long Yang Lu Railway Station, where you will board the Maglev Train. Once on board, sit back and relax as this comfortable new vehicle reaches speeds of 430 kmph (267 mph). The Maglev (magnetic levitation) train will whisk you away on a short journey to nearby Pudong Airport, as you marvel at being aboard the fastest means of transport on land. After a short stop the Maglev will take you back to Long Yang Lu Station. Following your exciting journey, you will board the coach to visit the futuristic Lujiazui financial district. Located in Pudong on the east bank of the Huangpu River, the waterway on which Shanghai was founded, it is China's self-proclaimed Wall Street and is home to wide avenues and high-rise buildings that didn't even exist before 1993. You will continue your glimpse into the future with a visit to Jin Mao Tower - a new highlight in the Pudong area. At 468 metres, it is the tallest television tower in Asia and the third tallest in the World, after those in Toronto and Moscow. It is not only used for television broadcasting, but also as a multipurpose building with museum, viewing deck, revolving restaurant and souvenir shops. You will be transferred back to the ship after end of the tour.

Tour Name	Shanghai Full Day
Duration	8 hours
No. Of persons	25 - 200
Tour Description	The first stop on your tour is the Yuyuan Garden, the only fully restored classical Chinese garden in Shanghai. It was inaugurated during the Ming dynasty and covers a total area of 20,000 square metres. Although the Garden occupies less than five acres, it perfectly demonstrates the sophisticated art of combining several different elements to create a world in miniature. Pavilions are ingeniously juxtaposed with passages, small hills and carefully selected, strategically positioned rocks, lotus ponds, bridges, winding paths, trees and shrubs. Next you will drive to the Jade Buddha Temple, which is still in use today and had 70 resident monks at last count. It was built between 1911 and 1918. The exterior is readily identifiable by its bright saffron walls. Inside, the centrepiece is a 1.9-metre-tall white jade Buddha, which was installed here after a monk brought it from Burma in 1882. After lunch, you will then return to the coach to drive to the Jinmao Tower, one of the buildings representing Shanghai in the 21st century. The building was inspired by the American firm Skidmore Owings & Merrill and was built by the group Shanghai Jian Gong. It includes offices and commercial areas. Then we will head to the 88th floor from where you will see a magnificent view of Shanghai. Last stop, you will drive to Xintiandi, a car-free shopping, eating and entertainment area of Shanghai, China. It is composed of an area of restored traditional shikumen ("stone gate") houses on narrow alleys, a modern shopping mall with a cinema complex, and some adjoining houses which now serve as book stores, cafes and restaurants. Most of the cafes and restaurants feature both indoor and outdoor seatings. Xintiandi means "New Heaven and Earth", and is considered one of the first lifestyle centers in China. After the sightseeing tour, you will be transferred to the port.

Tour Description	Sit back and relax during a two hour scenic drive to the Garden City of Suzhou. Visit the Garden of the Humble Administrators which was built in 1509 during the Ming Dynasty and is considered one of the four finest classical Gardens in all of China. As you stroll through the Garden's three parts – the Eastern, Middle and Western you will see the extraordinary fusion of nature, art and architecture that evokes the serenity of a Chinese painting. Suzhou has long been famous for its silk industry, especially its silk embroidery and your next stop will be at the Silk Embroidery Research Institute which was opened to preserve traditional methods and to research new techniques. This Institute has done superb work in hair embroidery and petit point, but the most widely executed types are single and double faced work and modern cross-stitch. There will be a chance to purchase souvenirs at the end of your visit. Afterwards, enjoy a Chinese lunch at local hotel before transferring to the Grand Canal pier and joining an 50-minute cruise on the Grand Canal. Sail along the largest man-made waterway, view classic Chinese architecture and glimpse at the lifestyle of the people living along its banks. Bid farewell to the garden city and transfer back to ship.

Tour Description	After leaving the port you will transfer to Lujiazui and visit the futuristic Lujiazui financial district. Located in Pudong on the east bank of the Huangpu River, the waterway on which Shanghai was founded, it is China's self-proclaimed Wall Street and is home to wide avenues and high-rise buildings that didn't even exist before 1993. Next stop you will board the coach to drive to the French Concession for a sightseeing tour. During the 1920s and '30s the French Concession was famous for its lawlessness and decadence. This spirit of anarchy also attracted political activists and one of the houses in the district was the venue for the First National Congress of the Communist Party. The foreign diplomatic quarter, top hotels, great shopping and international restaurants and bars are all housed in this art deco buildings of the area. The former residences of Sun Yat-sen, Soong Ching-ling and Zhou Enlai are also located in the French Concession. You will then drive to Xintiandi - a car-free shopping, eating and entertainment area of Shanghai, China. It is composed of an area of restored traditional shikumen ("stone gate") houses on narrow alleys, a modern shopping mall with a cinema complex, and some adjoining houses which now serve as book stores, cafes and restaurants. Most of the cafes and restaurants feature both indoor and outdoor seatings. Xintiandi means "New Heaven and Earth", and is considered one of the first lifestyle centers in China. Before return back to the port, you will have photo stop at the Bund in Zhongshan Road. It is a wide avenue along the Huangpu River. The newly renovated promenade between the Wusong River and the Old Town is known as The Bund, the former "Wall Street" of the foreign powers. The name itself reflects those colonial days: "Bund" is an Anglo-Indian word meaning embankment or quai. On the west side of the Bund, people hurry along, darting in and out of office buildings, while the side that fronts on the river is used for strolling and recreation. In the evening, the esplanade that traces the water line is dotted with young couples walking hand in hand and whispering quietly to each other. Tour Description	Drive from the port to Zhujiajiao - the water village. It is located in Qingpu County, Zhujiajiao is a well-known little town in the watery regions south of the Changjiang River. Small rivers with willow trees planted on both sides gently and quietly crisscross the town. Spanning the rivers are little stone bridges. On both banks of the rivers and along narrow streets and alleyways paved with gray stone slabs stand rows of houses of the local residents. Little bridges across bubbling streams, houses with courtyards produces a feeling of antiquity, peacefulness and quietness in people who have been living for a long time amidst the bustle and hustle of the city. There is in the town an ancient street with Ming and Qing Dynasty buildings and tea houses with simple folk style serving "grandma tea", attracting great numbers of domestic and foreign tourists. The Setting-fish-free Bridge in Zhujiajiao Town is the best among all stone bridges in Shanghai. It is 72-m long, 5.8-m wide, with 5 openings spanning the Caogang River like a rainbow. This bridge was built in 1571 and rebuilt in 1814. There is on the bridge a stone tablet named Dragon Gate Stone carved with 8 coiling dragons encircling a shining pearl that looks very much alive. On top of the bridge are 4 stone lions welcoming visitors with smiles. The whole bridge is exquisitely shaped and impresses visitors with an imposing air and little boats with black awnings in the rivers together constitute a scene just like a traditional Chinese painting in ink. Lunch is included for the tour. After ended of the tour, you will be return back to the port

Tour Name	Shanghai Walking Tour
Duration	4 hours
No. Of persons	25 - 40
Tour Description	Depart downtown pier for a walking tour exploring the city of Shanghai. Walk about 1.8 km to arrive at the Bund. Landmark of Shanghai for hundreds of years, this famed waterside walkway offers fantastic city view of Shanghai. The Bund is located along the Huangpu River which is located in the Huangpu District, the center of Shanghai. It is the scenery line of Shanghai. In the opposite across the Huangpu River, it has a few Shanghai landmarks like Shanghai Tower, Shanghai World Financial Centre, Oriental Pearl TV Tower and Jinmao Tower, which are among those most famous buildings in China. Walk from here for another 1.7 km, you'll find yourself in a busy typical Chinese bazaar in the old town area. The metropolitan Shanghai hasn't forgotten its root and old tradition along its 30 years' rapid economic development. Numerous old cultural customs, traditional cuisines, folk art, etc. have been well preserved and even developed. Shanghai Old Town, south of Yuyuan Garden, is the best place to shoot the traditional culture in Shanghai with lots of photo-journalistic opportunities, grasping the interesting moments of the community culture and watching a microcosm of Chinese city life. After shooting the people and the old town community, you can move to Yuyuan Garden nearby on your own arrangement. The Yu Garden is famous for its typical Chinese landscapes and architecture. Yuyuan Garden is closed on Mondays. To conclude the tour, enjoy a coach transfer back to pier.

Tour Description	After leaving the port you will drive to city centre. Before visiting the city. You will have chance to taste of typically Chinese food by serving lunch at local restaurant. The first stop on your tour is to visit the JinMao Building. It is one of the buildings representing Shanghai in the 21st century. The building was inspired by the American firm Skidmore Owings & Merrill and was built by the group Shanghai Jian Gong. It includes offices and commercial areas. Next you will drive to the Old Town Bazaar. The so-called bazaar is the busy area surrounding the Nine-Bend Pond and Yuyuan Garden. There are hundreds of small touristy shops, restaurants and tea houses in this area housed in really nice Chinese buildings that give some impressions and spirit of the old days in Shanghai. Pavilions are ingeniously juxtaposed with passages, lotus ponds, bridges, winding paths, trees and shrubs. This place is part of the remaining old walled city of the old Shanghai. The bazaar surrounds the beautiful Yuyuan Garden and a plethora of narrow alleys radiate from the bazaar, a touristy, but a place full of life attracting a consistent flow of tourists each day. Following your exciting journey, you will board the coach and drive to the Bund, Zhongshan Road is a wide avenue along the Huangpu River. The newly renovated promenade between the Wusong River and the Old Town is known as The Bund, the former "Wall Street" of the foreign powers. On the west side of the Bund, people hurry along, darting in and out of office buildings, while the side that fronts on the river is used for strolling and recreation. In the evening, the esplanade that traces the water line is dotted with young couples walking hand in hand and whispering quietly to each other. Finally you will be dropped off at the Nanjing Road, which has a bit of everything for everyone. There are shops for children, the elderly, women, knitters, photographers, art collectors, souvenir hunters and athletes. And if you can't find what you're looking for in any of these, you're bound to find it in one of the street's great department stores. The tour will be ended up at the Pudong airport. Notes: The tour can be participated for pax flight take-off by 23:00 onwards from Pudong Airport.

Tour Description	After leaving the port you will drive to city centre. Before visiting the city. You will have chance to taste of typically Chinese food by serving lunch at local restaurant. The first stop on your tour is Old Town Bazaar. The so-called bazaar is the busy area surrounding the Nine-Bend Pond and Yuyuan Garden. There are hundreds of small touristy shops, restaurants and tea houses in this area housed in really nice Chinese buildings that give some impressions and spirit of the old days in Shanghai. Pavilions are ingeniously juxtaposed with passages, lotus ponds, bridges, winding paths, trees and shrubs. This place is part of the remaining old walled city of the old Shanghai. The bazaar surrounds the beautiful Yuyuan Garden and a plethora of narrow alleys radiate from the bazaar, a touristy, but a place full of life attracting a consistent flow of tourists each day. You will then return to the coach to drive to the Bund, Zhongshan Road is a wide avenue along the Huangpu River. The newly renovated promenade between the Wusong River and the Old Town is known as The Bund, the former “ Wall Street “ of the foreign powers. The name itself reflects those colonial days: “Bund” is an Anglo-Indian word meaning embankment or quai. On the west side of the Bund, people hurry along, darting in and out of office buildings, while the side that fronts on the river is used for strolling and recreation. In the evening, the esplanade that traces the water line is dotted with young couples walking hand in hand and whispering quietly to each other. Afterwards, you will be transferred to the airport and end of the tour. Notes: The tour can be participated for pax flight take-off by 18:00 onwards from Pudong Airport.
